In Montreal. OMG, best hollandaise sauce ever for breakfast.

Step away from the Eggs Benedict and nobody has to get hurt.

Thank you

...And there goes the weekend

But hey, we got a day and a half of this one! And I got to sleep in for two whole mornings. Too bad

I keep thinking about making hollandaise sauce with olive oil instead of butter because of the dairy allergy.

...it's a personal problem, isn't it?

Isn't that, um, mayonnaise?

Mayonnaise isn't usually cooked. So a pretty different texture.

It's right on the edge - I can get away with a little butter, as it's proteins that I'm allergic to and butter doesn't have a lot, though I try not to over do it. I only rarely eat eggs, but I don't have a particular problem with eating them (they're kind of rich, though).

Sometimes I think hollandaise is the main reason I liked so many vegetables so young. My mom introduced a lot of vegetables with holladaise, which made a really good first impression.

Montreal...oh, I miss Montreal. Sooooo much good food. They have fantastic crepes the size of a yearbook!

Smoked meat! (Like the best pastrami you ever had.)

Marche Atwater. Marche Jean Talon. Awesome Taiwanese student food in a little food court on Ste. Catherine. Every sandwich ever at Premier Moisson.

Szechuan Hot Pot!

I'm going to have to roll home.

Lots of my friends are going to Montreal this weekend! Are you there for Farthing Party?

Oh, guess not, then. It's a very small science-fiction convention.

Oh, I miss Montreal. I miss Montreal's Chinatown. Even more specifically, I miss Montreal's Chinatown's pâtisseries. I could move into one.

My only problem was stifling the reflex to reply to French with Spanish.

Switch French for German, and that's pretty much what my brain wanted to do every time I was stumped in German class.

I think you should focus on your current set of problems, personally.

If you're ever in Seattle, you really, really should go to Wild Mountain and try the Eggs Benedict there.

It's heavenly.

Damn. So jealous. I miss Montreal (and Canada!) so much. If you have time, go up to Quebec City for a day just for the history (and the food!) ... and the cobble stone streets. 'specially in the summer. Last time I went, it was -35 C. I think you'll have a better time!
